CAREER TIPS

CAREER IN INSURANCE

With the service sector gaining extreme significance in the economy, insurance is something most people will buy and the large numbers involved are certain to throw up tremendous career opportunities in this field.

Is it the Right Career for Me?

There are primarily two skills required for taking up Insurance as a career option: First is the ability to easily befriend people. The second important skill required is the ability to see their problems clearly and make them understand the need for insurance.

As a student, in college or after having completed school, if you feel you have good selling skills and people skills, then Insurance most definitely is the right subject for you. You may join one of the popular Insurance companies as an Insurance Agent or a Sales Executive- Insurance. For this, you will need to clear the agent exam conducted by IRDA (Insurance Regulatory Authority of India). After working for a few years you can look forward to becoming an Insurance Manager.

What would it Cost Me?

The average annual fee of the MBA Insurance program can vary from Rs 1.0 lac to Rs2.0 lacs depending on the university and school you choose. Some of the best Insurance schools in India include ICFAI, NIA and Birla Institute of Management besides several others which provide distance education courses, diploma programmes and regular courses as well.

Funding/Scholarship

There are no separate loans available for Insurance courses alone as such. However, working professionals may study through their company sponsorships. Similarly, education loans of up to Rs. 7.5 lacs are available through banks such as State Bank of India.

Job Prospects

The job prospects for an Insurance professional are increasing day by day. You may join as an Insurance agent where your main responsibilities would include selling insurance policies to people. For this task, you would be given target amounts, which you will have to earn through premiums. On a commission basis, you will be compensated in turn. Other jobs include Sales Manager- Insurance wherein you would handle a team of Insurance agents for selling Insurance policies. Besides, you may join as an Insurance Underwriter as well.

Demand and Supply

Insurance professionals are highly in demand these days. According to statistics, only 14% of world population has been covered by Insurance professionals, which means there is much potential in the 86% population that is still untapped. So basically, the demand is much higher when compared with the supply. What is needed is people with passion for the subject and business acumen. As they say, "Insurance is a subject matter of solicitation". So clearly, a lot of revenue can be generated using this field if the policies and systems are laid fair and correct.

Market Watch

In the past few years, several popular Insurance companies such as Max New York, ICICI Lombard, Bajaj Allianz and others have come up with new policies to attract buyers. Most of the policies are reliable and of benefit to public. The market has only seen an upswing for the Insurance industry except during the slowdown of 2009, when there was a steep decline in financial position of all top companies.

Different Roles, Different Names

Insurance can be sold with different names but ultimately the aim is to insure somebody against untoward incidents such as accidents, thefts and natural calamities. The different types of insurance policies include Life Insurance, Health and Mediclaim Insurance, Home Insurance and Vehicle Insurance to name a few.
